I am extremely passionate about health promotion and strengthening communities so seldom heard voices are listened to in the health sector. I look forward to working with services from the Hammersmith and Fulham borough and supporting the voices of the residents in the health services we use. I am in office from 9am-5pm Monday-Friday.”

New Story: Update on Vaccinations

Anyone over the age of 12 can now get vaccinated. Currently the NHS is offering one vaccination dose to healthy 12-17 year olds and two doses for those aged 16-17 who are clinically vulnerable.

Parents and guardians for children aged 12-15 will get a letter with information about when the vaccine will be offered, but most children will be given their vaccine at school.

Booster vaccine doses will be available on the NHS for people most at risk from Covid-19 who have already had two doses of a vaccine and these people will receive an invitation from the NHS when it is their time to get the booster dose.

Novotel mass vaccination centre has ended its run after giving over 113,000 jabs but local pharmacies are still providing walk-in vaccination clinics around the borough, these are Hamblins, Kanari, Marcus Jones & Parmay.

New Story: Improving Housing for Disabled Residents

Hammersmith & Fulham Council has unveiled plans for 'radical improvements' in how it works with Disabled people to provide housing and support.

The Council writes "This commitment is marked with the publication of our first-ever housing strategy created in partnership with local Disabled residents. The strategy is ambitious and designed to meet the aspirations and priorities of Disabled residents across the borough, as we work to do things with, not to, local people."

Disabled resident, Jane Wilmot OBE, said: "Our aim is to help H&F achieve its ambition to be the most accessible borough in England.

Disabled people face barriers when using buildings, housing and open space. It's time we deliver accessible & inclusive buildings that work for all."

Councillor Lisa Homan, H&F Cabinet Member for Housing, said: "We know that Disabled people know best about what they need from their housing. It was important that we heard from as many Disabled people in our housing network as possible. That's why we also set up focus groups, to have in-depth discussions about housing issues.

Those discussions highlighted these key points and we'll now work with Disabled residents to deliver lasting changes and improvements to the way the Council operates." ➤ More. Story End

New Story: H&F Welcomes Second Refugee Family

The Council writes "Recently we welcomed a second Afghan refugee family to a home in the borough.

They arrived at the three-bedroom flat having been in temporary hotel accommodation in Wiltshire since their arrival in Britain.

As with the first family, H&F is supporting the parents and three children to ensure they become settled as soon as possible. We are connecting them to local schools, GPs and other services to ensure they can become as secure and comfortable as possible in their new surroundings.

H&F is also helping with multiple welfare and other needs of refugees still in local temporary accommodation.

Meanwhile, residents across H&F have continued to help out with the refugees through the charity West London Welcome (WLW) which has been collecting donations and distributing clothing and other goods. Last weekend WLW gave out clothes given by residents at an event supported by volunteers and interpreters." ➤ More

WLW is a community centre run for and with refugees, asylum seekers, migrants and other locals living in West London, and is the first of its kind in the area. They were set up by local people active in Hammersmith's Refugees Welcome Group, and opened doors in January 2018. ➤ More. Story End

New Story: #CancerWontWait Campaign

The NHS in North West London writes “We have launched a new campaign across North West London called ‘Cancer won’t wait’.

Since the start of the pandemic the number of people taking up screening appointments and attending their referral appointments has markedly dropped.

We are asking people to come forward for screening when invited and to speak to their GP if they notice any unusual changes in their body without delay.

Coronavirus has of course been a huge health concern for everyone this past year, and we have noticed that people are less likely to present to their GP with health concerns. When it comes to cancer, it is important that people come to us early, so every effort is made to help them as quickly as possible.

GPs are very busy but we are not too busy for our patients. If you have noticed something about your body that’s not normal for you, or are worried about any symptoms, please speak to your GP. Please also take up that screening.

Whether you or a loved one has a routine appointment, or a potential cancer symptom, our message is clear - you are not a burden, we are here to safely care for you so please don't delay, come forward as you usually would.

Cancer won’t wait and we can see you safely.
NHS staff have pulled out all the stops to keep cancer services going throughout the pandemic.

With thanks to staff at West Middlesex Hospital who have supported the campaign, featuring on posters, videos and social media.”

New Story: New Maternity Trauma and Loss Care Service

A new pilot service launched recently in North West London to help women who are experiencing psychological difficulties following pregnancy loss, still birth and neonatal loss, birth trauma and women who have a fear of childbirth (Tokophobia).

The development of this service will address a long-standing gap in provision, which the NHS Long Term Plan seeks to fill across all areas of England by 2023/24. This gap exists between interventions offered in primary care and community perinatal mental health services.

The Maternity Trauma and Loss Care Service (M-TLCS) is jointly led by West London NHS Trust (WLT) and Central and North West London NHS Foundation Trust (CNWL) in partnership with the NW London Local Maternity System (LMS).

The M-TLCS will help around 350 women each year access specialist support.

Around 2,145 women each year are provided with support through a combination of specialist midwifery, consultant midwifery, and obstetric led clinics in maternity services.

In addition, there is a significant number of women with psychological needs resulting from their maternity experience who need more focused specialist support, provided in a timely manner. M-TLCS aims to provide access to this help at this crucial time in a family's life. More. Story End

New Story: Hospital Discharge: Ensuring Continuity of Care

Healthwatch England writes “Last year you alerted us to the issue around the Government’s new ‘discharge to assess’ model for every patient. This model was put in place to free up thousands of hospital beds and cope with demand at the peak of the Covid-19 pandemic. This meant people were discharged from hospital faster by having their ongoing care needs assessed at home.

Almost 600 of you shared your experiences of leaving hospital with us. The research we conducted showed that:

82% of people discharged did not receive a follow-up visit and assessment at home.

One in five people felt their discharge from the hospital was rushed.

One in three people were not given contact details of who to get in touch with at home.

It became apparent that many people were being discharged at night without any transport arrangement in place.

So, we decided something had to be done.

Thanks to your feedback, we shared with the Government how the hospital 'discharge to assess' model worked for you and made several recommendations to improve it.

In July 2021, the Government updated their guidance for NHS hospitals, making improvements on several issues we raised. These changes include:

Safety first. The new guidance emphasises that people should not be discharged at night and that services should always tell people about the following stages of their care.

Holistic welfare checks. Everyone leaving a hospital will receive a holistic welfare check to determine the level of support, including non-clinical factors, such as physical, practical, social, psychological and financial needs.

Designated care when people leave hospital. Case managers should arrange your medication supply and transport home before you are discharged.

Additionally, the Government also provided an extra £500 million in funding to support better hospital discharge.

Thanks to your feedback, we raised this issue with key decision-makers and made services better for everyone.” ➡ More. Story End
